THE CHALLENGE

The Client was seeking to drive attendees to its Microsoft SharePoint Seminar in London. Its immediate goal was to produce high quality sign-ups. However, the overall objective was to generate and deliver to its inside sales team sales resources that are fully-qualified and with near-term requirement for the products it offers. The Client had no experience in outsourcing its marketing function, and the result of this campaign would determine whether or not it would consider similar projects in the future.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Performed an integrated two-phase campaign to make a shift from event invitation to lead generation

LEAD MANAGEMENT SOLUTIONS

THE CALLBOX SOLUTION

Callbox had an excellent campaign with the Client's main branch in the US, and was recommended by the latter to its UK office. The Client hired Callbox to make outbound calls inviting prospects to its Microsoft SharePoint Seminar in London. After making thorough preparations, Callbox then started the campaign, targeting CEOs, CIOs, CFOs, and Finance, and Operations Managers outside London. This project was a huge challenge for the team as it involved inviting prospects to an event that would require them to travel for several hours mostly by land.

With two weeks left in the project, Callbox proposed an integrated two-phase campaign to make a shift from event invitation to lead generation marketing to which the client agreed. The Callbox team proceeded with the lead generation campaign right away, focusing on promoting the client's workflow application for the police and fire services around London, UK area. Callbox was able to mine the Client's existing contacts database to identify hundreds of potential customers. This campaign targeted IT Managers, ICT, CIOs, HOD ITs, and IT Directors. Throughout the campaign, Callbox communicated regularly with the Client through PipelineCRM, which allowed the Client to monitor campaign progress in real-time.

RESULTS

The campaign inspired the Client to consider a change in marketing practices with outsourcing.

Despite the difficulties encountered during the campaign, Callbox was able to produce significant results for the Client.

- 15 qualified leads in 22 calling days
- 412 positive contacts out of 1912 (22% contact rate)
- 38 contacts scheduled for follow-up
- 55 requested for additional information

Additional benefits of this campaign include enhanced brand and product awareness, and acquisition of business intelligence and other significant data about the Client's market. Most notably, this campaign inspired the Client to consider a change in marketing practices with outsourcing. Needing more time to close the leads, the Client decided to put the campaign on hold, but expressed willingness to run another lead generating project with Callbox in the near future.
